An inspiring group of speakers seek to examine the radical implications of Christ’s life and transforming compassion in relation to issues of social justice. What is Christ saying to the poor, marginalized, and the struggles of our time? Can we rediscover a theology of liberation for today?

“The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free, to proclaim the year of the Lord’s favour.” (Luke 4.18-19)
Monday 19 September
Nicholas Sagovsky
Compassion and Justice

Dr Nicholas Sagovsky is a Visiting Professor at Liverpool Hope University and was until this year Canon Theologian of Westminster Abbey. He is the author of Christian Tradition and the Practice of Justice. He was a member of the Independent Asylum Commission and has chaired the Churches Refugee Network. In his lecture he will consider the Gospel in relation to issues of social justice with particular reference to his own work in advocacy and seeking justice for refugees and asylum seekers.

Monday 3 October
Clare Herbert
Compassion and Protest

Revd Clare Herbert has worked extensively in pastoral care and lectured in both pastoral and feminist theology. She was formerly Rector of St Anne’s Soho, and then Programme Director of Inclusive Church and Chair of London and Southwark Changing Attitudes. She is an ‘out’ lesbian priest and member of St Martininthe Fields clergy team specialising in inclusive theology. She is an active campaigner on behalf of gay and lesbian Christians. At present she is also studying for a doctorate focusing on the pastoral care of gay and lesbian people. In this lecture she explores the ways she has come to terms with needing to express both protest and compassion.

Monday 17 October
Neil MacGregor
Compassion and Art

Neil MacGregor has been Director of the British Museum since 2002. From 1987 to 2002, he was Director of the National Gallery. He has presented three television series on art and most recently the Radio 4 series A History of the World in 100 Objects, which was broadcast in 2010. As the highly successful Director of the British Museum he has pioneered a broader, more inclusive, peaceable and inspirational approach to our cultural heritage. As a gifted teacher he is able to put across the moving human message that lies within our ancient historical artefacts. In this lecture Compassion and Art he uses images to help us enter more deeply into our understanding of the radical compassion of Christ. He encourages us to reflect both on the truths of the past conveyed by the artist and ask the question “can these works of art speak to our present and deepen our own compassion and humanity?”

The lectures will take place in St MartinintheFields Church from 7.00pm - 8.30pm. They are free and no booking is required. There will be a retiring collection to cover some of the costs of the programme.

Dr Nicola Slee is a poet and theologian based at the Queen’s Foundation for Ecumenical Theological Education, Birmingham. She teaches in the fields of spirituality and feminist theology, and has a particular interest in women’s contemporary poetry that addresses issues of faith and spirituality. As well as writing poetry herself, she regularly runs workshops on women’s poetry and on creative writing. Her most recent publications include Praying like a Woman (SPCK, 2005), Women’s Faith Development: Patterns and Processes (Ashgate, 2004) and Faith and Feminism: An Introduction to Christian Feminist Theology (DLT, 2004). She has also written a series of adult Bible Study materials, the most recent of which is Seeing Jesus: Exploring the Bible through Contemporary Art (CE, 2005). She is currently working on a second collection of poems and liturgical pieces focused around Mary. In this lecture, she explores some connections and tensions between compassion and empowerment, particularly as she has experienced this in her own life and work, and illustrated through some of her poetry.

Professor Terry Eagleton is regarded as Britain’s most influential literary theorist. He currently serves as Distinguished Professor of English Literature at the University of Lancaster. He has written more than forty books, including Literary Theory: An Introduction (1983); The Ideology of the Aesthetic (1990), and The Illusions of Postmodernism (1996). In 2006, Eagleton produced a critique of Richard Dawkins’s The God Delusion in the London Review of Books. Eagleton questions Dawkins’s methodology and understanding: “Imagine someone holding forth on biology whose only knowledge of the subject is the Book of British Birds, and you have a rough idea of what it feels like to read Richard Dawkins on theology. Professor Eagleton delivered a Gifford Lecture in March 2010, titled The God Debate. He gave the 2010 Richard Price Memorial Lecture at the historically radical Newington Green Unitarian Church, speaking on ‘The New Atheism and the War on Terror’. In this lecture Terry Eagleton considers the contemporary relevance of the Gospel’s critique of power and the use of violence.

Dr Robert Beckford is an educator, author and award winning broadcaster. An educator for most of his life he has written extensively and has presented a plethora of documentaries on radio and television making his debut in the Trevor Phillips series, ‘Britain’s Slave Past’. He began working with Channel 4 in 2003. As one of the most prolific black documentary presenters in Britain, his credits include God is Black (2004), Empire Pays Back (2005), The Secret Family of Jesus (2006), The Great Africa Scandal (2007), The Secrets of the 12 Disciples (2008), Decoding the Nativity (2008), and The Dark Ages and the Emergence of an English Inclusivity (2009). His films for Channel 4 have earned him a ‘controversial’ label which he interprets as, ‘a cultural field that can only locate black men as athletes, entertainers or problematic.’ In this lecture he discusses Christ’s radical compassion and freedom.
